

CoverStory

Reliance Life Sciences Cashing on Biosimilars

Reliance Life Sciences has its eyes set on the lucrative biosimilars space and is all geared up to enter the emerging nations of the world win deal for both the sides. For the to-five years." former, the acquisition was a gateand its biopharma manufacturing fa- In these markets, RLS is expecting cility based out of Ireland, while for the latter, the acquisition bolstered its product pipeline.

Today, Reliance Genemedix plc plays a crucial role in RLS' overall biosimilar strategy. The entity looks as well as partnerships at the development and manufacturing of biosimilar products especially its lead EPO product, Epostim. This is but a slice of the company's tworegulated regions of the world. Nine Mr Subramanium. years since it was first incorporated (in 2001), RLS has grown leaps and Biosimilars will be a major cash cow However, having learnt the tricks of don and Houston.

Global Foothold

ack in 2007, Mumbaibased Reliance Life Scienc- a multi-pronged strategy for entering gion would be the main target out of es (RLS) achieved the mileglobal markets for our products and the regulated markets, in the emergstone of becoming the first services. This includes direct pres- ing nations, India and the semi-regu-Indian biopharmaceutical company ence in the markets as well as enter- lated markets would be the primary to make an overseas acquisition. RLS' ing into partnerships. RLS considers focus. Reliance Genemdix pic is foacquisition of the UK-based biotech exports as an important part in its cusing on developing and marketing company, Genemedix plc was a wingrowth agenda over the next three-biosimilars in European markets.

tical market in Europe and access to key growth region for RLS' global products namely ReliSeal, AlbuRel, Genemedix's wide product portfolio strategy over the next three years.

RLS' two-fold global strategy includes direct presence in the markets and acquisitions fold global strategy - to have a direct biopharma as well as pharma prod- a different set of challenges for any presence in a market or go through ucts. "These markets are growing at new entrant. For RLS, the key chalthe route of partnerships and acquisi- a faster pace compared to developed lenges were developing different tions, both in the regulated and semi-markets (like the US and EU)," adds product dossiers according to the bounds. Apart from a strategic pres- for the company in the coming years. the trade and weathered the storm, ence in Europe, RLS has expanded its The company has the largest pipeline the company is now geared up to wings, having representative offices of biosimilar products today. RLS alenter other markets of the world. In in Singapore, Dubai, Sao Paolo, Lon- ready markets five biosimilar prod- the coming years, Mr Subramaniam ucts in India. The strategy is to first reveals, the company will look at enlaunch these products in the Indian tering the Russian and CIS regions. market, followed by a launch in other Throwing light on the company's countries. RLS is already looking at game plan in the global landscape, Mr launching its biosimilar product for KV Subramaniam, president & CEO, red blood production in Europe in a Apart from biosimilars, RLS also develops and markets (both in India way to the booming biopharmaceu- The emerging markets would be the and overseas) five plasma protein ImmunoRel HemoRel, ReliPlasma, > Reliance Life Sciences also plans to foray into the global generic drug space under its entity Reliance Pharmaceutcials. It will produce active pharmaceuticals ingredients (APIs) and generic medicines for the international market including the US and Europe.

Future

multiple product approvals for select

Every international market presents regulatory requirement of each country and steering the approval process.

NAYANTARA SOM IN MUMBAI

Publication: BioSpectrum

: 28

Date

Page

Title

: April 2011

: Reliance Life Sciences

Cashing on Biosimilars